

PARENTS COME FOR MISS LEWIS

Woman Who Thought She Was Wife Goes Back to California Home.

ATTEMPT AT COMPROMISE

BRUCE HOPES TO BE ABLE TO AVOID PROSECUTION.

Miss Lenora Lewis, who thought that she was Mrs. J. W. Bruce, did not start for her home in Redding, Cal., on Wednesday, as she had planned. Instead, she remained in Salt Lake until last night, having learned that her parents had started for here immediately after hearing of her plight. The mother and father and the unhappy girl were reunited here, and began to journey to Redding, Cal., on the 11:45 o'clock train last night. When Bruce, or Slocum, first learned that the girl whom he had deceived had called to carry out her intention to return to her parents the day after his arrest for forging the name of Superintendent G. H. Smith of the Roeder command of the Republic for $400, he jumped at the conclusion that Miss Lewis still loved him too dearly to turn her back upon him, even after the discovery that she had been deceived, and that she was not lawfully his wife.

Go Back to Redding.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis, while in Salt Lake, stopped at the Raleigh rooming house, in First South street, near State. Yesterday they saw Bruce. The conference was unsatisfactory to the alleged forger, for immediately afterward Mr. and Mrs. Lewis made arrangements for taking Miss Lewis back to Redding. Bruce's home is in Albany, Ill. He is a prominent citizen there and several of his uncles are said to be bankers. His right name is Bruce Slocum, but during all the time he has been in Salt Lake he has been known as Bruce, in the complaint against him his name is given as Bruce.

When he went to Redding, Miss Lewis was studying to become a school teacher. Bruce, who is a good-looking man, intelligent and of the type that easily pleases women, soon won the girl's heart. She married him and left Redding with him after he had, it is alleged, possessed himself of $500 that did not belong to him.

Did She Know.

How much the girl knew of the man's character or of wife No. 1 it is impossible to say. Those who have investigated the case say that it is hard to credit the statement that she was not aware that she was wife No. 2 until the man was arrested for forging Superintendent Smith's name.

Mrs. Bruce Slocum, wife No. 1, swore out a warrant for the man's arrest in Redding, and Miss Lewis' relatives know that Bruce, or Slocum, was charged with bigamy.

The fact that the girl did not write to her parents is accepted as indicating that she knew that her supposed husband had reasons for going into hiding and that she was willing to do all she could to shield him.

Burlington Road Sought to Restrain Nebraska Commission From Modifying Grain Rates.

St. Louis, April 17.—An opinion handed down today by the United States court of appeals rules that a federal court has no authority to interfere by injunction to prevent a state railway commission from changing rates, until the rates actually are fixed. The opinion upholds the decree of the United States circuit of Nebraska, which refused to restrain the Nebraska railway commission from modifying rates on grain and grain products transported in Nebraska.

HERMAN RIDDER HAS HOPES

New York Publisher in Washington Laboring for Free Wood Pulp and Print Paper.

Washington, April 17.—That Herman Ridder of New York, president of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, has not abandoned his fight to have wood pulp and print paper placed on the free list is indicated by the fact that he conferred yesterday with Representative James E. Watson, the Republican "whip" of the house, on the subject.

Mr. Watson told Mr. Ridder that personally he favored the proposal and suggested that Mr. Ridder make an effort to induce the Democratic senators to agree that if a wood pulp and print paper bill reached the senate it should be permitted to pass without amendment.

"If you can get such an agreement from the Democratic senators I think there will be little difficulty in putting a bill through the house admitting wood pulp and print paper on the free list," said Mr. Watson.

Mr. Ridder announced his intention of taking up the matter with the Democratic senators.

COMMITTED NO OFFENSE.

Cleveland, O., April 17.—Three members of the crew of a baggage car who were arrested last September for carrying liquor into dry territory were held blameless by Judge Beacom of the common pleas court here today. Judge Beacom held that the liquor was the property of the man to whom it was consigned and that the crew committed no offense in handling it.

The decision establishes a precedent.

WHY KAISER DID NOT WANT HILL

New Ambassador Unable to Hold Up His End Because of Lack of Wealth.

Washington, April 17.—The attitude of Emperor William and the Berlin court toward David Jayne Hill, named by the president to be ambassador at that capital, was the subject of comment in the house of representatives today during consideration of the diplomatic and consular bill. Both Mr. Perkins of New York and Mr. Slayden of Texas expressed the opinion that objections to Mr. Hill were due to no other cause than that Mr. Hill was financially unable to maintain a certain standard of social representation. Each of them condemned the practice which, they said, had grown up of selecting men of great wealth to be the nation's diplomatic representatives abroad, and urged, as a means of counteracting the effect of such a policy, the housing of our diplomats in buildings owned by the government, and the allowance to them of salaries sufficient to enable them to maintain the dignity of their high office.

Talks on Many Subjects.

Under license of general debate, Mr. Griggs of Georgia spoke in advocacy of disfranchisement of the southern negro. Mr. Burton of Ohio discussed the causes of the recent financial depression.

Mr. Hill of Connecticut reiterated his views in favor of the Fowler financial bill. Mr. Byrd of Mississippi attacked the protective tariff policy of the Republicans. Mr. Thomas of North Carolina made a plea in support of a proposition for an inland waterway from Cape Cod to Beaufort, N. C., and Mr. Saunders of Virginia urged governmental aid to various schools of the several states in promoting the cause of agriculture.

Mr. Cousins of Iowa, chairman of the committee, deferred until tomorrow the usual explanation of the diplomatic bill.

With the diplomatic bill still under consideration the house, at 5:42 p. m., recessed until 11:30 a. m. tomorrow.

THREE JUDGES NECESSARY

Bill Passes Senate Limiting Power of Federal Courts in Issuance of Injunctions.

Washington, April 17.—Injunction against the enforcement of state laws can only be issued by a majority of three federal judges who are to pass upon them if a bill that passed the senate today becomes a law. The bill was drafted in the judiciary committee from a number of measures under consideration. It was reported by Senator Overman and its provisions were explained by him to the senate. A substitute by Senator Burkett was disagreed to. The Overman bill was opposed by Mr. Heyburn on the ground that the great distances between the federal courts in the west would operate to delay the granting of necessary injunctions.

Senator Knox favored the passage of the bill and opposed Mr. Heyburn's arguments.

The senate discussed at length the bill to appropriate the proceeds from the sale of certain public lands for the reclamation of swamp lands, but made little progress towards its passage.

At 3:41 p. m. the senate adjourned.

INQUIRY TO BE RESUMED

Special Agents Detailed to Look Into Land Fraud Cases in Colorado, Utah and Wyoming.

Denver, April 17.—The United States department of justice, reversing its policy, announced some time ago, will resume investigation of land frauds in Colorado and other western states and a force of special agents has been detailed from Washington to begin immediate work in Colorado, Utah and Wyoming. They are to make their headquarters at Denver. It has been understood that there would be further proceedings in these cases in Colorado until after the supreme court had passed upon the appeals from the recent decisions of Judge Lewis quashing the indictments that had been returned against alleged "land grabbing."

These appeals are not to be argued until Oct. 13, and no explanation has yet been given for the change in policy of the administration in resuming the investigations before that time. A federal grand jury has been summoned for the May term.

CONNERS AND MACK CONFER WITH BRYAN

"Again, I lived in the west, and that fact alone was enough to condemn. We are a Bible-reading people and we are likely to confuse time with place in our reading of the scriptures. The wise men are said to have come out of the east, and that may have led to the belief in 1891 that they must continue to come from the same direction. However, the fact that I still remain in politics should be sufficient to disabuse our Republican friends of the latter mentioned idea."

"In 1898 I was buried. I know it for I have often read about it. When I reappeared in 1900 I mystified many Republicans who did not know whether I had ever been killed or had just been resurrected. At St. Louis I was run over and trampled upon, but I still live."

The Money Question.

In discussing the money question, Mr. Bryan said that it would be a nonentity in the approaching campaign.

"The same men who asserted twelve years ago," said Mr. Bryan, "that we had too much silver money are now besieging the treasury department in an effort to get the printing presses busy on a new issue of banknotes."

"A silver dollar loses half of its value when melted, but melt a cashier's check and what is left?"

HEADQUARTERS FOR TAFT.

Chicago, April 17.—Headquarters for the promotion of the candidacy of Secretary of War Taft for the presidential nomination were engaged at the Grand Northern hotel here today. It was understood that Arthur L. Vorys of Columbus, Mr. Taft's campaign manager, will come to Chicago on Monday to take charge of the bureau.

Washington, April 17.—The senate today passed the Sutherland bill granting Salt Lake City perpetual easment and right of way for a pipe line across Fort Douglas military reservation, to take the place of the reversible license now held for this purpose. ROCKEFELLER'S SMOKING.

(New York Telegraph.)

Stewart Chisholm of Cleveland, who spends a great part of the season in New York, is a great friend of John D. Rockefeller, and has many stories of that man of wealth, nearly all of which go to show his simplicity of thought and manner of living—irrespective of his financial operations.

"Some years ago," said Mr. Chisholm, "Mr. Rockefeller was worried a great deal with catarrh, and somebody told him to smoke dried mullein leaves—you know the kind you used to roll into cigarettes when you were a boy. Your mother generally chased you into the wood lot if you smoked them anywhere near the house, but you didn't mind the odor—you liked it. Well, Mr. Rockefeller had a lot of mullein leaves dried and prepared for a pipe, and he used to pull out that implement and puff away innocently in the most unexpected places."

"One day he was on a Pullman coming to New York, and, feeling the need of a mullein smoke, he made his way to the smoking compartment. This was years ago, before his face was so well known, and not a man in the crowded smoking room recognized him. He edged unconcernedly into the place, filled his pipe, and was soon puffing great clouds of evil-smelling smoke all over the apartment. Men who were smoking high-priced perfectos looked at him as if they would have liked to throw him out in front of the engine, but he was, as he always is, utterly oblivious to their disapproval, and kept calmly puffing away. Finally the men could stand the odor no longer, and, one by one and scowling, they fled out.

"At length only one remained, and he was a heavy-jowled person, with a big black cigar between his teeth. When all save he had departed, Mr. Rockefeller noticed the evacuation, and, still blowing clouds of heavy blue mullein smoke, edged on the leather seat near to the remaining smoker.

"Can you tell me, sir," he said deferentially, "why all those gentlemen left? I thought they wanted to smoke and some of them threw away their cigars before they were half through."

"Yes, I can tell you, and tell you quick," responded the other surlily. "They left because they couldn't stand the smell of that infernal stuff you're smoking."

"Well, well, is that so?" Mr. Rockefeller said, gently laying his hand confidently on his companion's knee. "And do you know, my friend, it took me a long time to get used to it!"

ORDERED AROUND.

(Children's Visitor.)

"Sorry, sir," telephoned the butcher, "but we are out of sirloin. Why don't your wife order you a round?" "What's that?" exploded Barker at the other end of the line.

"I say, why don't your wife order you a round?"

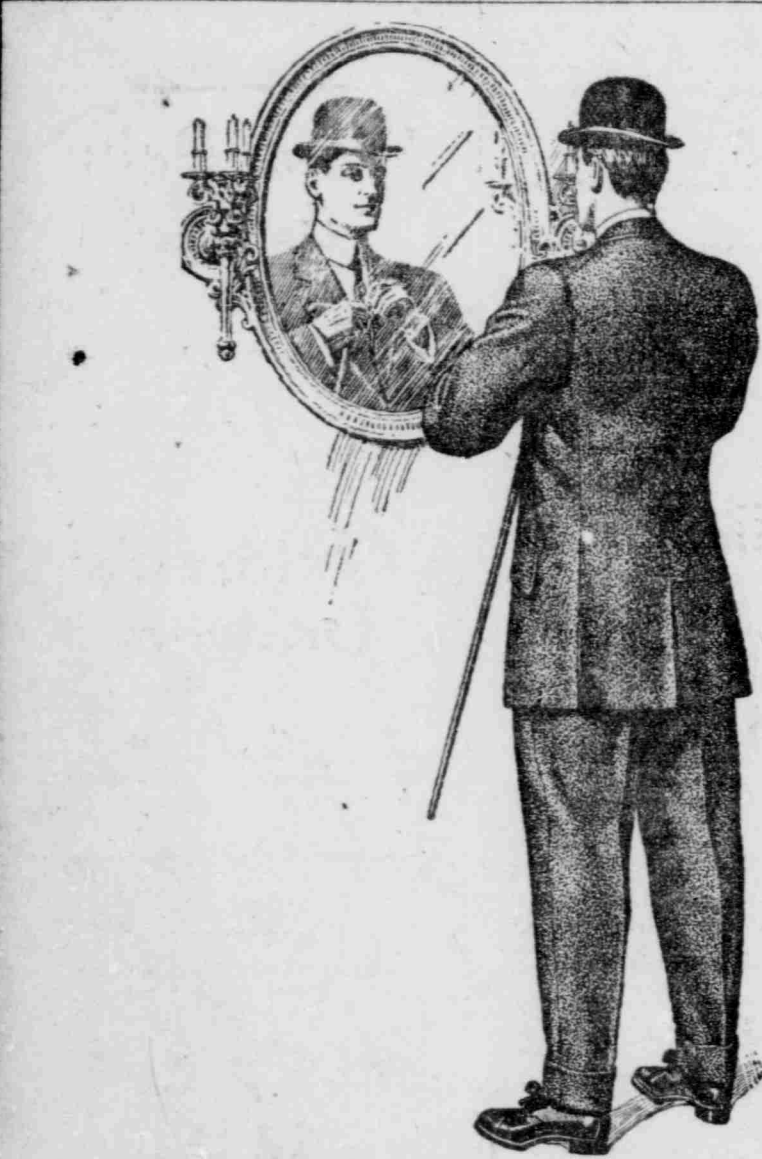

"Why don't my wife order me around? Man, that is all she does from morning until night! If you were nearer, I'd—"

But the startled butcher had hung up the receiver.
